THE ARKANSAS DERBY

Buckrene Wins by a Short Head in a Fighting Finish.

Outside Bookmakers and Betters Kicking Against a Contract with a St. Louis "Bookie"-Other Sports.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 2.-The third Arkansas Derby was run to-day. Fully five thousand people were on the ground. There was lots of money at the track and the people were anxious to place it, but on account of the unsatisfactory prices against the horses the speculation was limited to a comparatively small amount. Samuel Adler, of St. Louis, secured the exclusive booking privileges from the Jockey Club, and, while there were six stalls in operation, they were all practically in the same book, and there was little competition. It was a 95-per-cent., air-tight cinch book. The management of the club has been severely roasted by bookmakers who came here expecting to do business and found themselves excluded by Adler's contract with the club. The betting public also joins

The flag fell on the Derby to a good start, with Buckrene slightly in the lead. Followday was second and Tilsit third. All got away pretty well together except Powhatta, who got two lengths the worst of it. At the quarter Buckrene was a length in front of Followday, while John Cooper had moved up to third place. Turning into the back stretch, Cooper challenged Followday and moved into second place. There was no change in the respective positions of the leading horses until the stretch was reached. Here Powhatta, who had been trailing several lengths behind the bunch, came up with a rush and joined in the struggle for the leadership. Overton, on Cooper, evidently underestimated Buckrene's sprinting ability, and intended to make a close finish. He waited too long, however, and in a desperate finish Buckrene won by a short head. John Cooper finished four lengths in front of Powhatta. Summary:

Buckrene, 122, Thorpe, 4 to 1, won; John Cooper, 122, Overton, even money, second; Powhatta, 110, Daley, 10 to 1, third. Time, 1:43.

Failed to Pay Purses. KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 2 .- The new track at Wyandotte almost collapsed today owing to the management's failure to pay purses. When the time came to start up to-day's programme Manager Levia was nowhere to be found, and it was discovered that the track had no backing whatever. The horsemen then got together and agreed to carry out the programme for some days. It may be decided to run the track for the balance of the thirty days, as

VOORHEES OVERDID IT

He Lauded Zinsich Until Cleveland Began to Doubt Him.

Now the Captain May Not Get the Steamboat Inspectorship-Wealth of Indiana in 1890.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WASHINGTON, April 2 .- The new supervising inspector of steam vessels for the Sixth district will be appointed soon, but there is every reason to believe that Capt. Zinsich will not be the lucky man, in spite of all the countless trips Senator Voorhees and Representative Taylor have made to the White House and to the treasury in the Evansville man's behalf. The appointment will probably go to Dabney Scales, of Memphis. Mr. Scales has the support of Representative Patterson, of the Memphis district, and as that gentleman, since his flop into the cuckoo ranks, has been given almost everything that he has the nerve to ask, it is the belief at the Treasury Department that he will succeed in his present struggle for the inspectorship. Mr. Taylor was very confident recently that Capt. Zinsich would be appointed, but statements from well-informed treasury officials do not warrant his confidence. The term of the present inspector, John Ingle, expired Aug. 1893, but no active steps were taken to name his successor until about last Christmas, when Captain Zinsich arrived in town and opened aggressive operations. He was taken to the White House and introduced to President Cleveland by Senator Voorhees, who, in his usual extravagant way, lauded the Captain up to the skies, and rather gave the President to understand that Captain Zinsich exercised personal supervision over the ebb and flow of the tides, and might have been Robert Fulton if he had not preferred to be an Evansville Democrat. Mr. Cleveland was impressed with Mr. Voorhees's statements, but, knowing his man, took occasion recently to verify the Sycamore's statements. He found that Captain Zinsich, instead of being a steamboat captain, with knowledge, skill and practical experience in steam for navigation, as the statutes demand, was the master of a ship chandlery, and that, instead of being a "competent judge of the character and quality of vessels and of all parts of machinery used in steamers," probably knew more about ships' binnacles and grease. Mr. Carlisle will take up the case this week, and the appointment may be for the office, which pays $3,000 a year.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WASHINGTON, April 2.-A bulletin has just been issued by the Census Bureau giving interesting figures of the wealth of the United States. The total true valuation of the real and personal property in the country at the close of the census period, 1890, amounted to $65,037,091,197, of which amount $39,544,544,333 represents the value of real estate and improvements thereon and $25,492,546,864 that of personal property, including railroads, mines and quarries. At the same time the total assessed value of real and personal property taxed was $25,437,173,418, of which amount $18,956,556,675 represented real estate and improvements thereon and $6,516,616,743 personal property. The true valuation of property for 1890 is classified as follows: Real estate, with improvements thereon ......$39,544,544,333 Live stock on farms and ranges, farm implements and machinery ...... 2,703,015,040 Mines and quarries, including Machinery of mills and product on hand, raw and manufactured ...... 3,058,593,441

Railroads and equipments, including $283,898,519 street rail-and canals..... Miscellaneous ...... 7,893,708,821 Total ...... 65,037,091,197

The figures for Indiana, being now nearly four years old, are of interest principally for purposes of comparison with other States. The total valuation of all property in the State as returned in 1890 was $2,095. 176,626, divided up as follows: Real estate, with improvements thereon .....$1,288,163,737

Live stock on farms, etc...... 114,533,677 Machinery of mills and product and canals..... Miscellaneous ...... 267,525,614

Indiana, with her $2,095,176,626 of property, stands tenth in the family of States. New York stands at the head of the list with $8,576,701,991. Then follows Pennsylvania with nearly $6,200,000,000, Illinois with $5,000, 000,000 and Ohio with very nearly $4,000,000,-000,000. Her remaining rivals are Massachusetts with $2,800,000,000, California with $2,-533,000,000, Missouri with $2,397,000,000, Iowa with $2,287,000,000, Texas with $2,105,576,766 Michigan presses Indiana closely, as she is worth $2,095,016,272.

It is a striking fact that in the amount of gold and silver coin and bullion, Indiana surpasses California, the El Dorado, by about $3,000,000, from which it may be inferred that the old coffee pot and the rural sock are still popular in the Hoosier State. In the value of real estate and improvements. Indiana stands eighth, being exceeded only by New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Massachusetts, Ohio, California and Missouri. The growth of the wealth of the State is best shown by the fact that in 1850 the total valuation of real and personal property was $202,650,264; in 1860, $528,835,371; in 1870 $1,268,180,548; in 1880, $1,681,000,000; in 1890, $2,-095,176,626. The per capita valuation rose from $205 in 1850 to $956 in 1890.

FRUITLESS ROLL CALLS. Democrats in the House Still Unable to Secure a Quorum. WASHINGTON, April 2.-For five hours to-day roll call followed roll call in an endless attempt to bring the Republican filibuster against the O'Neill-Joy contested election case to a close, but at no time were the Democrats able to muster a quorum, and the fight was finally abandoned for the day. Mr. Patterson, of Tennessee, who has charge of the case, said this evening: "This case will be kept before the House until it is disposed of, if it takes all summer. It might as well be understood now as later on. Those who have any idea that it will be abandoned will find that they are mistaken." Just before the House adjourned Mr. Patterson gave notice that to-morrow he would ask the House to sit in continuous session until the case was decided. To-day 170 was the high-water mark touched by the Democrats on any roll call. This is nine short of a quorum. About ten Democrats are voting on every roll call against O'Neill and three from his own State. At 4:35 the House ad-

TREASURY STATEMENT. A Deficit of $6,294,763 for the Month of March. WASHINGTON, April 2.-The regular monthly Treasury statement for March shows receipts as follows, cents omitted: Customs, $11,358,984; internal revenue, $12,-808,427; miscellaneous, $675,385. The total receipts were, therefore, $24,842,797, as against $34,115,809 for March, 1893. As compared with March of last year there was a falling off in the receipts from customs of over $8,-300,000, from internal revenue of $122,500, and from miscellaneous sources of $844,622. In the expenditures there was a decrease of $540,915 on Indian account, and $466,714 on account of pensions. There was also a falling off in the interest account of $432,-

The monthly public debt statement for March, due to-day, was not issued in consequence of a slight delay in the preparation of the figures, and as the treasury printers work strictly under the eighthour law the statement could not be gotten out by 4 o'clock, their time for closing.

Letter Carriers' Uniforms. WASHINGTON, April 2 .- Objections have been raised by letter carriers in several cities to the requirements of the Postoffice Department concerning the purchase of carriers' uniforms, although no formal protest has been made. First Assistant Postmaster-general Jones, in speaking of the matter, said: "No rule respecting the carriers' or substitutes' uniforms has been changed. The purchase of these suits rests with the carrier and postmaster, as provided in Section 613 of the postal laws and regulations. This provides for an inspection of uniforms every six months by the postmaster, and that no postmaster shall require a new suit or any article of it to be purchased when that in use is in reasonably good condition. When proper he may require any carrier to purchase a new uniform or part of one, and the carrier must appear as neat and tidy as the service will permit. The only purpose of the department in contracting for the uniforms was a desire to aid the carriers in securing better uniforms at a lower price. There is nothing compulsory in it further than is already provided by the postal laws."

000,000 has been agreed to by the House committee on naval affairs in the item for armor plate and armament in the naval appropriation bill. The Navy Department's estimate was $6,500,000. This was to wind up large outstanding contracts with the Carnegie and Bethlehem concerns for armor for the new war vessels. on assurance of costs and appearance of counsel, the case will be docketed in the United States Supreme Court. It is said

by an official of the court that there is hardly any likelihood that the case will be heard this term. To gather pearls from Ocean's vases Divers go down in divers places; But at our mouths of streams and bays, No pearls do Asian swimmers raise Like those in beauty's mouth that shine Made by the SOZODONT divine.

Memorial Services Over Alexandria Victims-Lafayette Now Sure of the Monon Shops-State Items.

GUILFORD, Ind., April 2.-While two little daughters of farmer Collier, living two miles from town, were crossing the railroad on the way to school, to-day, one of them caught her foot in the frog at the switch. The other went to her assistance, but before she could extricate the foot a train approached around a curve. With a self-sacrificing heroism not to be expected in one of her age, the little girl bravely stood beside her helpless sister, suffering the loss of one foot, while the other little one had both legs crushed by the wheels. She will die. The little heroine may recover.

THE ALEXANDRIA VICTIMS. Memorial Services Attended by the Entire City Yesterday.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. ALEXANDRIA, Ind., April 2.-Memorial services over the remains of Ora E. Ball and Jesse Harrold, two of the men who lost their lives in the explosion Saturday night, took place this morning at the opera house, no church being large enough to accommodate the multitude. The large hall was crowded to the doors, and the scores of sympathizers who were unable to gain admission organized an overflow meeting, over which the Mayor of the city presided. The entire city was draped in mourning and not a business house kept open during the ceremonies. The remains of Ora Ball were afterwards taken to his old home at Lewisville, Ind., and those of Jesse Har-rold to North Manchester. The interment of both will take place to-morrow. Similar memorial services will be held to-morrow over the charred corpses of Charles Hoover and Harry Bowyer, who suffered the same lamentable fate at the same time. A mass meeting of the citizens met to-night at the opera house to pass appropriate resolutions and to raise a relief fund for the destitute families. Mr. Ball was a member of the K. of P. and I. O. O. F. lodges, and was well known throughout the city as a young man of excellent character and high moral courage. Of the three who were rescued the only one who was dangerously hurt is H. Hurd, butcher, who in all probability will lose a leg. The coroner held an inquest, and his verdict was that the explosion resulted from escaping gas in the American express room, which adjoins Harrell & Pyle's barber shop. It is believed that the gas was ignited from a jet that had been left burning in the office. Bowyer had been married but seven months, and he met death on his birthday. Mrs. Bowyer was prostrated yesterday, and is now confined to her bed. All of the men killed were under thirty-five years old, and all had been married less than four years, with the exception of Ball, who was single.

This, however, may not be the case, as it is now known that a strong effort has been man to bring out a candidate in this city that will divide Cooper's forces here and let in the other candidate from another part of the district.

DR. BROWN - SEQUARD

Death of the Celebrated Medical Experimentalist in Paris.

His Life Was a Constant Endeavor to Solve the Mysteries of His Profession-Other Deaths.

PARIS, April 2. - Professor Brown-Sequard, the eminent physician, the supposed inventor of the elixir of life, died here to-

born on the island of Mauritius in 1818, his father being an American sea captain from Philadelphia, whose vessel was lost in an attempt to convey provisions to the inhabitants of Mauritius during a famine. His mother was a French lady on the island named Sequard. The son was educated in Mauritius, and completed his studies in Paris. In 1846 he received the degree M. D., and at once plunged into physiological experiments, making many important discoveries. He received five prizes from the French Academy of Sciences and twice received the Queen's grant for the encouragement of science from the British Royal Society. He was the first to show that blood fibrin has no value in nutrition. His experiments first showed that arterial blood alone is subservient to nutrition and that venous blood is necessary to reduce contraction of the muscles. He fixed the temperature of the human body at 103 degrees, several degrees higher than previous investigators. He also made marvelous discoveries in the nature of antitoxic remedies The mooted questions concerning the connection of the spinal cord with the cerebrum were greatly clarified by his investigations. In May, 1858, he delivered a series of lectures on the nervous system before the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons in London In 1834 he was made professor of physiology and pathology of the nervous system at Harvard and took up his residence in the United States, remaining four years. In 1869 he returned to France and served two years as professor of experimental and comparative pathology in the Paris School of Medicine. At this time he founded his second medical journal in Paris. In 1873 he became a practitioner New York city. Dr. E. C. Sequin Associated tablished a third medical journal. Later he returned to Paris and, in 1878. succeeded Claude Bernard in the chair of experimental medicine in the College of France, being also elected to a similar chair in the French Academy. Since that time he has acquired wonderful fame for his breatment of difficult and obscure diseases of the spinal column and nervous system. He made numerous visits to England and America, delivered many lectures, instructing physicians in his discoveries and illustrating by vivisection. He was a member of the National Academy of Sciences and had published several American volumes on nervous diseases. None of his work, perhaps, threw him into such general notoriety as his elixir of life concoction which caused such a furor among physicians in all the civilized world about four years ago.

A MERE WORKHOUSE SENTENCE.

Judge Cox Deals with a Man Who Confesses a Burglary. In the Criminal Court yesterday Judge Cox made a peculiar disposition of the charges against Lorenzo Stewart and his wife, Junietta, who were arrested some time ago for burglary and grand larceny. They were accused of removing a large portion of the household effects from a residence on East Ninth street to their own home on Yandes street. At the time of the robbery the Ninth-street family was away from home, and the theft was not detected until their return. The goods were found in the possession of the Stewarts, and the police believed that a strong case could be made against them. When brought into court yesterday Stewart withdrew his former plea of not guilty and confessed to the theft. Judge Cox, in the face of the strong evidence and the confession of Stewart himself that he had committed a bold robbery, imposed a slight workhouse sentence,

They Want Legislative Protection Against Dead Beats.

The hotel men of this State will get together to-day at the Denison and organize an association, something that has been attempted twice in the past ten years unsuccessfully. It is expected that there will be sixty or seventy present at the meeting, the primary object of which is to take steps to secure legislation protecting the hotels against dead beats, who prey upon Indiana hostelries because of the stringent laws in the surrounding States, which make it dangerous to "jump" hotel bills. A permanent organization will be formed, and, as John J. Pauley, of the Hotel Rich, at Fort Wayne, said last night, the delegates will exchange experiences on how best to catch a guest who has a penchant for slipping down a fire escape or dropping out into the back yard with his belongings, and without the formality of settling his bill. Mr. Pauley and Dick Townsend, of the Randall Hotel, Fort Wayne, were the first of the delegates to arrive. They got here last evening. The session will probably open at 2 o'clock this afternoon and continue into Wednesday,

Judge Winters yesterday heard the argument in the litigation arising from the purchase of the pacing horse Boone Wilson. The sureties for the purchase are squabbling as to who would first be held liable on the note. Captain Riley, father of the purchaser, was on his son's paper and the court is to decide whether or not he should be held liable as the surety or the maker.
